

ARCHITECTURAL LANDSCAPE AND NEIGHBORHOODS IN HISTORICAL COLUMBUS October 1-2, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Doreen Uhas Sauer

No hiking shoes required. Do you feel nostalgic when you remember the old signs and restaurants in Columbus? Do you remember the summer homes that belonged to the wealthy, the ethnic enclaves or the bar with the Polish icons? This course will give a seated tour through Columbus' neighborhood's architectural history reminding us how the 1920's changed Columbus. It will reveal the secrets of unique neighborhoods, share Columbus' successes and remind us that with change come vices and problems.

Doreen Uhas Sauer holds degrees in history from The Ohio State University. Dr. Sauer earned statewide recognition for her work in preservation education. She was also named Ohio Teacher of the Year.

STAGING THE AFTERLIFE: IMAGES OF HEAVEN AND HELL IN RENAISSANCE DRAMA October 4-5, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Professor Elise Lonich Ryan

Professor Elise Lonich Ryan returns to OWLS by popular demand! During the Reformation in England, following Henry VIII's split from the Roman Catholic Church and during the periods of religious upheaval, questions concerning the afterlife abounded: Would there be a bodily resurrection? Did Purgatory still exist? Could one be certain of salvation? Theologians and statesmen argued, and in some cases, died trying to answer these questions. Literature found other creative and dynamic ways to represent the personal and cultural crises causing seismic shifts in England. This class examines the ways that performance staged these questions of the afterlife creating one compelling and capacious means to understand one's life.

Professor Ryan earned a Ph.D. in English Renaissance Literature, has published articles, and teaches and writes in Pittsburgh, PA.

AGE OF DISINFORMATION: SOCIAL MEDIA AND "FAKE NEWS" October 8-9, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Dr. Thomas Froehlich

This Introduction to the Age of Disinformation will consist of four parts: (1) A characterization of the Age of Disinformation with a description of the variety of the forms of falsehoods that have entered the (dis)information marketplace, including misinformation, disinformation, self-deception, doxing and fake news; (2) A description of the aims of deception from two viewpoints: the aims and kinds of deception, including self-deception, and the aims and kinds of misleading; (3) The psychological grounds for the adherents of fake news that makes them believe fake news and disbelieve contravening evidence or facts; (4) some lessons in information literacy to combat fake news stories and web sites.

Thomas J. Froehlich, Ph.D., is Professor Emeritus, School of Information, Kent State University (27 years). He has provided workshops and presentations in 26 countries in the areas of online searching and the ethical concerns of information professionals.

U.S. FOREIGN POLICY: 1970-2018: IMPLICATIONS AND WORLD IMPACT October 11-12, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Dr. Greg Ferro

Would you be surprised if Israel attacks Iran and what will be the consequences of an attack on the U.S.? Do you feel informed when discussing the current war in Afghanistan? This course is for people who want to learn more about U.S. Foreign Policy. Dr. Ferro will address the challenges and opportunities of U.S. foreign policy in the 21st century. Dr. Ferro will explore the common denominators of U.S. foreign policy since 1970. The course will show the tension of U.S. national interests and their symmetry around the world. This class will deepen your understanding so you can see the similarities and differences in wars like Afghanistan and the Vietnam War. We can honor the more than 8,000 U.S. service people killed in the battles of Iraq and Afghanistan by learning about U.S. foreign policy in the past and present.

Dr. Greg Ferro Ph.D. earned his Ph.D. at Pennsylvania State University. Author, gifted teacher and Special Interest Program Lecturer Dr. Greg Ferro is a highly awarded and captivating Instructor.

AMERICA'S "GILDED AGES": HISTORY AND CHARACTER-ARE WE THERE AGAIN? October 19 AND 26, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Dr. Paula Baker

"Gilded Age" describes a period of massive political corruption, especially politicians on the take courtesy of big business, and a society obsessed with money and getting rich. The first was the "roaring" 1920s. Since then until today, new "gilded ages," have marked periods of political corruption, the corporate power exercised against the public interest, and economic inequality. Has the "gilded age" label ever been applied fairly or accurately? Was the original label more an exercise in nostalgia and political rationalization than a description of an especially corrupt period? Were later "gilded ages" exceptionally corrupt periods? Is today historically "gilded"?

Dr. Baker received her Ph.D. from Rutgers University, where she studied U.S. political and women's history. She is currently completing a history of campaign finance, The American Political Industry, which tells the story of party finance and organization from the beginning of mass political parties to 2004.

OHIO'S INDIAN CULTURES: EARTHWORKS AND OTHER HIDDEN TREASURES October 29-30, 2018
10 AM to 3 PM

Dr. Richard Shiels

Explore 5000 years of American Indians building earthworks. Discover what these earthen structures reveal as Native knowledge uncovers what is written on these sacred lands. This course will share the story of Ohio Indians beginning in 1763, the same year Britain's thirteen colonies were moving toward the War of Independence. That same year, Ohio Indians fought for their independence from the British and then struggled again for their Independence from the United States and the ultimate consequences of their battles. Prophets Neolin and Tenskwatawa and military leaders Pontiac, Little Turtle, Blue Jacket and Tecumseh, will be remembered for their contributions and efforts in Ohio's Indian Story.

Dr. Shiels, with assistance from Glenna Wallace, leads World Heritage Ohio, a statewide organization which is working to inscribe key Ohio earthworks on the UNESCO World Heritage list. Read more about Dr. Shiels at owls.coursestorm.com

THESE TERRIBLE, TREMENDOUS YEARS

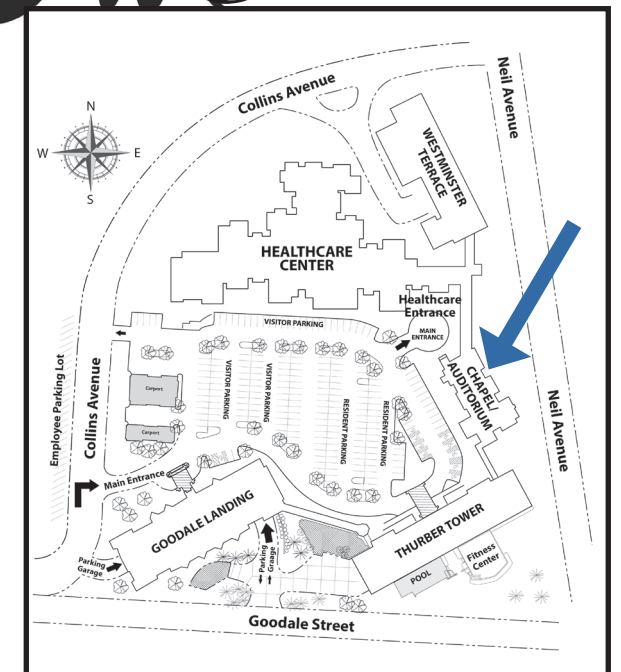

October 16, 2018
1 PM to 3 PM

Dr. Karen Eliot, author of Albion's Dance: British Ballet during the Second World War, published by Oxford University Press examines personal stories drawn from memories and writings with the historical context of the time. Dr. Eliot's presentation will share the life of female dancers exempted from war duties so that they might help boost public morale. She will also share the sacrifices male dancers gave so that they could serve their country. Finally, she will demonstrate "the human need to counter destruction and fear with acts of creativity and art."

Dr. Eliot is a Professor in the Department of Dance at The Ohio State University. Dr. Eliot holds a Ph.D. in English from the University of Georgia and a BA in English and Dance from Cornell University.
